Rules for Using Quotation Marks " "

Name _____

Quotation Marks " "

Quotation marks come in pairs. You need one set of quotation marks at the beginning of the title, dialogue or quote and you need one at the end.

Quotation marks surround dialogue/conversation:

"I had a fantastic time at the zoo," Jill said.
Joe said, "I got an A on my math test!"
Jill whined, "I'm hungry!"

Quotation marks surround some titles, some countries use single quotations:

One of my favorite movies is 'The Ant Bully.'
My brother really likes Fred Penner's song 'Cat Came Back.'

Quotation marks surround some ironies (use with caution):

Jamie is too "busy" to help me!
My sister chums with a bunch of "bimbos".
She says she "forgot" her homework.

Commas and periods go inside of the quotations marks.

Question marks and exclamation marks go inside IF they are part of the quote, if not, they will go outside the quotation marks.

Semi colons and colons always go outside of the quotation marks.

Summary: A rundown of the general rules of when and where to use quotation marks. In the following sentences put in quotation marks wherever they are needed, and underline words where italics are needed. Mary is trying hard in school this semester, her father said. No, the taxi driver said curtly, I cannot get you to the airport in fifteen minutes. I believe, Jack remarked, that the best time of year to visit Europe is in the spring. At least that's what I read in a book entitled Guide to Europe. My French professor told me that my accent is abominable. She asked, Is Time a magazine you read regularly? Flannery O'Connor probably got the title of one of her stories from the words of the old popular song, A Good Man Is Hard to Find. When did Roosevelt say, We have nothing to fear but fear itself? Yesterday, John said, This afternoon I'll bring back your book Conflict in the Middle East; however, he did not return it. Can you believe, Dot asked me, that it has been almost five years since we've seen each other? A Perfect Day for Bananafish is, I believe, J. D. Salinger's best short story. Certainly, Mr. Martin said, I shall explain the whole situation to him. I know that he will understand. Quotation Mark Exercise Answers "Mary is trying hard in school this semester," her father said. Learning how to properly use quotation marks can improve your writing skills. Here is a full guide to explain how to do just that! Students are often at a loss as what to do inside the quotation if other punctuation is needed. In American English commas and periods that are required always go inside the quotation marks. The tricky forms of punctuation exclamation and question marks need to be looked at on a case by case basis. Depending on the syntax, they can be found inside or outside the quotation marks. If you are quoting a complete sentence, the first word should contain a capital letter. Alternatively, if you are only quoting a part of a sentence, they don't need to be capitalized. If your students expect to advance their grammar skills, they must learn how to apply quotation marks properly for research papers and works of fiction. One of the most powerful learning tools in these lessons is a worksheet that requires your kids to find quotation mark mistakes within paragraphs. Differences Between Single and Double Quotation Marks Double and single quotes are used in different situations; however, some writers often confuse them. Generally, double quotes are used for direct speech. They look like this: "I am going to teach a class on Saturday," she said. Single quotes can often be used in the same sentence. They are used to indicate quotes inside a quote. They are also used for a title or headline inside a quote. This is what it can look like: "She wrote 'The Sleepy Unicorn' for kids two years ago," John pointed out. The Rules The grammar rules for quotation marks are different in British and American English, which makes it even more confusing for international schools. This guide is for American English rules. There is one golden rule for quotation marks: when a quote is opened, it has to also be closed. If you start a sentence with a quotation mark, then you need to close the phrase, sentence, or word with a quotation mark too. Here is an incorrect example: "I am going to make some tea, he said. Can you find the place where the closing punctuation should go? It should be written after the comma after the word 'tea.' All quotation marks exist in pairs. Other rules are written below: 1. Quotes Inside Quotes As stated before, if you need to use quotes within a quote, single quotation mark needs to be used. Here is what it looks like: "My favorite song is by BTS called 'Butter,'" she said. Yes, the closing quotation marks look like three marks. While it might look odd, this is the correct way to do it! Check out this example where the quote inside the quote is right in the middle of the sentence instead of at the end: "He told me, 'I will see you on Sunday,' so I will talk to him then," she said. 2. Quoting and Capitalization When it comes to capitalization, you will notice that the content can sometimes be capitalized. It usually depends on what you are trying to say. Of course, the first letter is always capitalized when you are quoting complete sentences. Here is what it can look like: She said, "I am thinking of choosing history for my major at college." This is the same, even if you quote something in the middle of your sentence. But, you need to start the quote inside with a capitalized letter. However, it doesn't have to start like that, depending on what you are quoting. If you only quote a small phrase or a part of the sentence, you can also start with a lowercase word. She suggested they were quite "qualified and professional." 3. Quotes and Other Punctuation One thing that can confuse anyone is whether some punctuation marks need to be used outside or inside the quotes. Here are some tips that you can use to place all punctuation marks correctly. For example, if you are using punctuation marks to introduce your quote, it doesn't need to be written inside the quotation marks. However, punctuation marks to end the sentence have different rules. Commas and periods to end the sentence are within the quotation marks, while any colons, dashes, or semi-colons are placed outside. Here are two easy examples: "She makes me laugh a lot," he said. Her two favorite characters from "Star Wars" are Han Solo and Yoda. We hope this guide on how to properly use quotation marks can help you improve your writing!
